Madison's ambassador of positivity is 89-year-old Hayes

BY BOB DEMAREE

In the August issue of "Rider" magazine, columnist Eric Trow writes about a cross-country motorcycle trip with his son, Porter, and about a stop in historic Madison, Indiana, where an older gentleman greeted them with a joyful "Good morning" as they were searching for a coffee shop.

The older gentleman asked about the journey the father and son were on, and then told them about the city and his life in Madison.

Even though the article doesn't mention the older gentleman by name, Wayne Stearns of North Vernon said "there can be little doubt" that the "older gentleman" was 89-year old Frank Hayes.

It's actually an encounter Hayes remembers. "I do that with a lot of people," he said. "I'm proud of our history here and everything Madison represents. We need to tell people about it."

Hayes, who lives in an apartment above the Red Roaster Coffee and Eatery, 102 West Main Street, encountered the Trows there.

Eric Trow was impressed by the kindness Hayes had shown him and his son and wrote about that in the motorcycle publication.

"This is the small-town friendliness and hospitality I was drawn to as a young solo traveler, and it was wonderful to see Parker discovering it as well," he wrote.

Madison Mayor Bob Courtney said recently it's residents like Hayes who make Madison a special place to live and a special place for visitors and it's for that reason Courtney presented Hayes a ceremonial key to the city.

"He's been a wonderful ambassador for the community," said Courtney.

In addition to the friendliness Hayes shares with passersby, he's also philanthropic and donates to several local organizations including the Lide White Boys and Girls Club and the Children's Advocacy Center of Southeastern Indiana.

Hayes is only the second person to receive a key since Courtney became Mayor in October of 2019 — the other being Elsie Perry-Payne, a long-time volunteer in the city, including leadership of the Pilot Club which holds Old Court Days twice a year around the Jefferson County Courthouse.

Hayes had lived in New York for 57 years before moving to Madison six years ago after his wife died in 2014. He moved into the apartment building — he calls it the old Lodge Brothers Furniture Store for the longtime business that occupied the structure for many years at the northwest corner of Main and West streets in downtown Madison — that has housed a coffee shop now for two decade. He spends much of his time out and about in the vicinity of the coffee shop, spreading kindness to the people he encounters.

Hayes was born in Indianapolis, but later moved to Jefferson County, where he attended Hanover High School. He went on to serve with US Air Force reconnaissance units from 1951-1955. Following his military

Contractors were busy working on the new 300-bed Jefferson County Sheriff's Office and Criminal Justice Center on Friday. The county broke ground at the site on July 24 and so far work is progressing on schedule with the foundation poured and walls going up. The $45 million jail, located at 1150 J.A. Berry Lane, is slated to be completed in 2023.

Construction for new jail still on schedule

BY BOB DEMAREE

Progress on construction of the new Jefferson County Sheriff's Office and Criminal Justice Center is moving forward on schedule on Madison's hilltop.

At Thursday's Jefferson County Commissioners meeting, president David Bramer reported that work on the foundation is nearly complete, and Sheriff Dave Thomas said decisions on carpet and door colors are currently taking place.

"Work is pretty much on schedule," Thomas said.

Bramer said the footprint of the building is "smaller than what I thought. There's plenty of room for expansion," he noted, should the county need to build larger at some point in the future.

The county broke ground July 24 on the new 300-bed jail, located at 1150 J.A. Berry Lane, and construction on the $45 million facility is slated to be completed in 2023.

Bramer said there has been a request to re-name J.A. Berry Lane from State Road 7 to Shun Pike as Veterans Parkway, a matter in which the Commissioners have not yet made a decision.

Animal Shelter board sets plan for hiring manager

BY MARK CAMPBELL

The Jefferson County Animal Shelter board has received at least five resumes for the shelter's interim manager's position and board members hope to begin going though those and any other applications received next week in order to have the position filled in November.

There will be no residency requirement for the position; however, board member Warren Auxier noted that he and others board members might give more consideration to a person who lives in the county and can access the facility quickly in the event of an emergency.

"There's no residence requirement but it might be taken into consideration if the person lived 10 minutes from the shelter rather than an hour away," Auxier said. However, he also pointed out that depending on qualifications and how a particular candidate presents in interviews with the selection committee, hiring outside the county could produce the best candidate.

The position was created at the board's last meeting when the Jefferson County Animal Shelter (JCAS) board received notice that manager Jenny Slover will be off work for some time on medical leave.

COVID-19 death toll climbs to 11 in Trimble

BY THE COUREIR STAFF

Kentucky's COVID-19 pandemic death toll passed 9,000 Thursday include an additional death in Trimble County to increase that community's total to 11 dead.

With 50 newly reported COVID-19 deaths on Thursday, Kentucky's overall total increased to 9,022.

At the same time, Kentucky Gov. Andy Beshear said, due to increased vaccinations and more Kentuckians wearing masks indoors, the Commonwealth continues to see a decline in COVID-19 cases, test positivity rate, hospitalizations, ICU admittances and ventilator use.

On Thursday, the Kentucky Public Health Department reported 2,625 new cases of COVID-19 — 643 of those in residents 18 and under — bringing the state's overall total to 708,236 during the pandemic. Still, Thursday's total was a drop from two weeks earlier when on Sept. 23 there were 4,099 new positive cases.

"While we are all excited about the trends and where we're going, lets remember that we're going to live with these scars and trauma and loss for a long time. Lets make sure that we give ourselves space and do something about it. And the No. 1 thing we can do is get vaccinated," said Beshear.

Trimble County has actually reported two deaths this week. In addition, Jefferson and Switzerland counties in Indiana each added another COVID death this week bringing Jefferson's total to 95 deaths and Switzerland County's to 11 deaths. There were no new deaths reported by the state this week in Carroll County, which has now 23.

In Indiana, the death toll from COVID-19 during the pandemic in now 15,469, increasing by 29 in the last day. There have been 982,444 positive cases of COVID-19 overall, an increase of 3,595 in the last day. Indiana's positivity rate is 9.4%.

Hanover moves forward with $5.8M wastewater project

BY BOB DEMAREE

Plans for a projected $5.8 million sewer system and wastewater treatment plant improvement project involving both the Town of Hanover and Hanover College are moving forward with approval given to Wessler Engineering of Indianapolis for design and asset managing at Tuesday's town council meeting.

As part of the process, funding will come from Indiana's State Revolving Fund (SRF), an agency administered by the Indiana Finance Authority to provide low-interest loans to municipalities for wastewater and drinking water infrastructure improvement projects.

To move the project forward, a contract of $371,500 for design, $23,800 for bidding and $50,000 for the asset management plan was approved with Wessler Engineering for a total of $445,300.

Clerk-treasurer Keith Mefford said details of the funding are still being sorted out until the town receives SRF money, and approval of the professional contract with Wessler Engineering is part of the process in moving the project forward.

"It going to be funded. We just don't know yet by which function," said town council president Kenny Garrett.

Mefford said Hanover College will contribute a portion of the cost for the project.

In other business, the board:

• Held a public hearing on the town's budget for 2022, and approved on the first reading. The local budget totals $720,000 while the home-ruled funds total $586,523. The budget will be adopted at the next meeting.

• Set Halloween Trick-or-Treating for 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 31 to be consistent with the date Madison has scheduled for its Trick-or-Treat. Mefford and some of the town council would have preferred Saturday, but there was concern that if Madison and Hanover have different nights that some people may trick-or-treat both nights in the communities.

Additionally, there were safety concerns if Hanover had it on a different night. Board member Debbie Kroger said Town Marshal Shane Caldwell reported to her the County Sheriff's office does a check on sex offenders on Trick-or-Treat night to ensure they aren't a threat, and with the communities choosing different nights, it would make that more challenging.

• Awarded a bid to replace the Heating, Ventilation and Air Conditioning (HVAC) unit in the town hall to QOHVACS LLC, of Madison, at a cost of $8,244 for a unit manufactured by Rheem. Other bids were Smedley HVAC of Madison at $6,000, and Steinhardt Heating and Air Conditioning of Hanover for $11,511.

• Mefford reported on a Duke Energy survey of the town's street lights, and noted Hanover has 168 lights. He said there is consideration of adding some more street lights, along with changing over to LED lighting which would provide an energy cost savings to the town.

• Mefford gave an update on city leaf pickup once they begin falling. "Those that can, or are willing, mulch them; that's the recommendation," Mefford said. "Those that choose to rake them, rake them to the curb to the street," not in the street, and not in bags or with limbs.

• Ben Sommer of Hanover approached the board about his concerns about a homeless man in the community who he said "has been scaring a lot of people."

"I think the man needs help," Sommer said. "I would like to see him get some help, but if not some kind of legal action needs to be taken."

Mefford agreed that the man "definitely needs help. When he's on his medication, everything seems to be OK" but "if you hear him in his rage, it's frightening."

Hanover Police Officer Kyle Pence said the man has been arrested for trespassing, and drifts between Madison and Hanover. Devon Sharpe, attorney for the town, said he will discuss the situation with Caldwell concerning ways to deal with the issue.

• Updated on a recently discussion on posting an information sign in the town. Board member Treva Shelton suggested locating the signs alongside the town's welcome signs. The board agreed to ask the town's beautification committee to take on the project.

• Granted approval for the town's utility department to attend the Accelerate Indiana Municipalities (AIM) training Nov. 7-10 in Evansville. Mefford said the utilities office will be closed Monday through Wednesday of that week, but a dropbox will be available for customers to pay bills.

Police make multiple arrests

BY THE COURIER STAFF

A Madison man was charged Thursday with allegedly violating a protective order by running his vehicle into another vehicle occupied by an estranged spouse.

Madison Police Department Patrolman Josh Nolan received a dispatch concerning the crash at 12:30 a.m., and moments later Lt. Season Jackson and Patrolman Curtis Shelpman located a vehicle parked at a gas station matching the description of the car involved in the incident with damage to the front end.

The driver, Ethan E. Campbell, 32, Madison, was located inside the gas station and placed under arrest.

Campbell has been charged with Domestic Battery by means of a deadly weapon, a Level 5 felony; Criminal Recklessness, a Level 6 felony; Leaving the Scene of an Accident and Invasion of Privacy, both Class A misdemeanors. He was lodged in the Jefferson County Jail without bond.

Elsewhere on Thursday, a report of a reckless driver led to the arrest of David C. Stoner, 34, Madison, for Possession of Methamphetamine, a Level 6 felony and Possession of Drug Paraphernalia, a Class A misdemeanor.

The arrest occurred after Madison police received a report that a vehicle had struck a curb before pulling in the Walgreens pharmacy parking lot, 129 Clifty Drive. Shelpman located the vehicle and observed an open alcoholic beverage container and methamphetamine inside the vehicle.

Stoner was taken into custody and lodged in the Jefferson County Jail without bond.

In other business, the commissioners:

• Followed up on plans for the $6.2 million the county received through the American Rescue Plan. In August, the Commissioners announced a draft of how they plan to spend half of what will be received this year — $3.1 million.

Commissioner Bobby Little said before finalizing how the money is spent the county should seek advice from Barnes and Thornburg attorneys in Indianapolis to be certain the money is allocated as designated.

"We felt it's better to get a professional opinion before we start using it," said County Auditor Heather Huff, noting if the county uses the money improperly, it will have to give the money back within 180 days. Huff suggested the possibility of scheduling a joint meeting between the County Council and the Commissioners before finalizing how the ARP money is spent.

• Huff talked about the need for air duct cleaning in the Courthouse, something she said has not been done since the Courthouse fire in 2009. "All the ducts need to be cleaned," she said, noting they have been finding small black balls on surfaces, and they discovered that it's coming from the ducts. One quote of $32,000 has been received, but the Commissioners will be seeking other bids for the work.

• Heard a request from Tami Hagemier, representing the Jefferson County Humane Society, in which she requested consideration of an increased budget for the Jefferson County Animal Shelter. With requests for increased staff, building improvements, animal medical treatment expenses and more, Hagemier said the current budget is not sufficient.

Workers oraganize pipe at the work site of the new Jefferson County Sheriff's Office and Criminal Justice Center.

• Approved a limited use agreement between the county and the Town of Hanover that would allow for sharing information through the iWorQ software, designed for governmental entities to track building permits, planning, zoning and more. The Jefferson County Planning, Zoning and Building Inspection office is in the process of beginning utilization of the iWorQ software, which is already being used by Hanover's Building and Zoning Department.

• Approved the purchase of a Savage Boom Mower 600A from Chamber American Products Inc. of Pioneer, Tennessee, at a cost of $120,000, due to malfunctions with current mowers. Bramer said two of the county's surplus mowers will be put up for sale next week.

• Approved a contract for $3,600 with Integrity One Technologies of Indianapolis to scan all minutes of county meetings and provide searchable functions for finding information. Little noted that scanning the documents will decrease long-term wear-and-tear on county's bound books and make them easier to search.

• Emergency Management Agency Director Troy Morgan reported on a $30,000 grant that had been received from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to replace the perimeter fence at the Hanover wastewater treatment plant. Morgan said portions of the fence have holes and need to be replaced, and the county was able to obtain grant funding for a new fence.

Morgan also updated that the Jefferson County Emergency Management Agency had received a $20,700 grant from the Community Foundation for a sUAS (Small Unmanned Aircraft System) drone for use by county emergency officials and first responders. The new drone, which has been ordered but not yet received, will have infrared technology with thermal imagery that will allow for capturing images at night.

• Milton Township residents Barbara and Randy Romans returned with follow-up information after research on the scoring for the gravel road conversion program in which they have felt Bishop Hill Road should have scored higher, and were given assurance that the information will be reviewed and they will receive a response.

Seeking a dreamboat

Dear Annie: I've known my friend for nine years. We dated for about two years and then broke up. We were back and forth with each other, so we decided in 2016 that we would get married, but then we ended the relationship again. We remain friends.

Toward the end of 2019, "Edward" got seriously sick. He was so sick that he had two operations that left him with aches and pain, and loss of memory. He remembered things on a day-by-day basis. He will never be able to go back to work; he's disabled now.

I've been helping him out all this time, but now it's time for his family to take over. I do everything for him because he doesn't know how to do much anymore.

I advised his family that by the end of the year, I will not be helping him anymore and told them that they need to step up and come take over caring for him. Edward thinks that I'm wrong for this, but he doesn't understand that I gave up my personal life to be there for him all these years.

For two years, my life has been on hold, and it's time that I get my life back. He's telling all his neighbors that I'm leaving him by himself and that he doesn't know how he's going to live without help. He needs 24-hour care.

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

It's time for his family to help out. To be clear, there's nothing between Edward and me. We're just friends. I guess I felt sorry for him because no one else would come when he needed the help.

Please give me some feedback. — Tired Friend in Vegas

Dear Tired: Even though he's not expressing it, Edward is incredibly fortunate to have someone in his life as compassionate and supportive as you are. Without you, he would likely have had a very different experience these last two years.

With his health deteriorating as quickly and severely as you've described, it sounds like the care Edward really needs is beyond what any one person can give him. Now is the time for his family to consider at-home aides or living care facilities equipped with resources and staff that can better and more easily provide for him.

Dear Annie: I am a single 70-year-old lady. I just found out I am going to have to wear a CPAP due to breathing issues when I sleep. Those things are so unattractive.

I would like to find love again, but would a guy understand if I have to wear one at night? Or should I just give up on finding love? — Dare to Dream

Dear Dare: Any man bothered by your sleep setup is clearly not one worthy of lying in your bed.

And don't overlook the silver lining here: The time in which you're wearing the CPAP is when you're fast asleep. Presumably, your Mister will be, too.

How can I move on from the past?

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I am a 52-year-old man who came to this country when I was 15. I met this friend, "Tom," when I was in high school, and I spent a lot of time at his house when I was 16.

His mom, "Diane," was very kind to me, and she was 39 years old at the time. She would take me home after a visit. One night, when she was taking me home, she stopped the car and molested me.

From then on, Diane would molest me quite often. She started brainwashing me and manipulating me, saying that I didn't need anyone but her. So I disowned my family and moved in with this family. Diane divorced her husband to be with me.

I didn't want any of this, but that was all I knew at 16. I eventually married my abuser when I was in my early 20s. During our marriage, I could have and should have left. I stayed because she had been brainwashing me since I was 16 to love her and only her.

Fast-forward to 2019; Diane divorced me because she found someone else who is still married and 15 years younger than she is.

Now I miss my own family and keep thinking about how she robbed me of my teenage years and years afterward. My question is: Is there anything I can do legally to hold her accountable for the molestation since there is no statute of limitations on sexual abuse? — Loss and Regret

Dear Loss and Regret: I am so sorry that you had to encounter such a horrible, manipulative person when you were young and vulnerable. No child — and child is what you were — should have to suffer that type of abuse. You sound like you have had some good therapy because you see now that her behavior was truly manipulative and intended to brainwash you. My guess is that your healing and self-care journey will last a lifetime, but that will only make life more joyful. What we put in, we get out of this life.

Of course you miss your family, and that is what the healing is for. Tell them that all the time — how much you missed them. You can't go back to the past, but you can look to the future. There is a reason the rearview mirror is a lot smaller than the forward-facing windshield. Look toward the future and, as much as you can, forgive your perpetrator and forgive the young boy who didn't know any better. Once you give yourself that gift, you will feel lighter and less angry. As for legal recourse, I'm not sure. I will print this letter in hopes that an attorney who specializes in this type of law might write to me.

But seeking legal action and having to relive all the trauma again and again might not be the best way for YOU to move forward. The best revenge is living well, so continue to stay committed to that course.

I just read this quote and am hoping it will ring true for you:

"The kindest people are not born that way, they are made. They are the sounds that have experienced so much at the hands of life, they are the ones who have dug themselves out of the dark, who have fought to turn every loss into a lesson. The kindest people do not just exist — they choose to soften where circumstance has tried to harden them, they choose to believe in goodness, because they have seen firsthand why compassion is so necessary. They have seen firsthand why tenderness is so important in this world." — Bianca Sparacino

Carroll brothers make Honor Flight

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Three brothers from Carroll County — Ira Pyles, Terry Pyles and David Pyles — all served in the United States military during the Vietnam War.

Terry Pyles, of Madison, Indiana, decided they should go together on the Honor Flight to Washington D.C., but before that could happen, David Pyles of Carrollton died in December 2019.

The Honor Flight program, suspended during the COVID-19 pandemic, was restarted on Sept. 21 and Terry and Ira, of Erlanger, Kentucky, were selected to be on that flight. They left Cincinnati/Northern Kentucky International Airport at 7 a.m. accompanied by Jasper Pyles, their nephew and son of David Pyles and Ira's son Gregory.

After arriving in Washington, they visited the World War II Memorial, Korean War Memorial, Vietnam War Memorial, Iwo Jima, Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the US Air Force Memorial, US Navy Memorial, Arlington National Cemetery and other Washington D.C. sights before flying home.

Upon arrival back at Cincinnati/Northern Kentucky International at 10 p.m. they were greeted by a banner, family and friends with a parade and band welcoming them back home in what was a memorable trip for all.

CAB says staffing for meetings should improve

BY MARK CAMPBELL

With additional camera operator's being added — as well as a pay adjustment for that work — the Cable Advisory Board of Jefferson County hopes to begin staffing more meetings and events with video coverage moving forward while continuing to look for a way to rebrand that service and bring functionality to the product.

The group, which represents Jefferson County, Madison and Hanover, met for about 90 minutes on Thursday night at Madison City Hall and discussed a variety of topics but took very little action.

In terms of decisions, the board agreed to proceed with purchasing another video camera based on a previously approved allocation, agreed to renew its contract for anti-virus software with Microdome Computers of Madison and decided to begin paying camera operators a flat rate of $35 per meeting through October and then revisit that decision at its Nov. 9 meeting after better determining the CAB's financial situation.

While each of those decisions was voted on, the board also discussed several other issues at the core of what the CAB is trying to accomplish, ranging from improvements to the website, a proposal to reduce the number of members who serve on the board, ways to provide better coverage of more meetings, the need to rebrand and rename the service to achieve a higher and wider profile and the need for a manager to oversee day-to-day operations.

Toward the end of the meeting, Jim Bartlett, who serves on the CAB on behalf of the City of Madison, said he had recently held discussions with Mayor Bob Courtney concerning the CAB's decision to rename the former Madison TV15 as Jefferson County Community Television. The concern was that JCCTV excludes both Madison and Hanover from the name and could make it more difficult to locate and access video content from both cities online.

"Jefferson County Community Television does not search well for Madison and Hanover," said Bartlett, noting the name could make it more difficult for the communities' videos to be found on YouTube or other online options.

Bartlett also said that after sitting on the CAB for several months and being involved in the decision making, he thinks the service needs additional management.

"It's become apparent to me that we are going to have to have some form of a manager whether it's full-time or part-time," Bartlett said. "I think the board can deal with the big decisions but we need a manager to deal with the day-to-day decisions."

Lori Hedges, another board member who has helped with that task more recently, said that might require a bigger funding contribution from the governmental partners to pay for a director.

Bartlett said he did not think that would be a problem as long as the CAB can show what the money will be used for and how it will improve operations. He also noted that the CAB has not invoiced the city in months for Madison's monthly $1,000 contribution and may have done the same with the other two governments.

Earlier in the meeting, Andy Lytle of Microdome, discussed several options for improving the CAB's website — ranging from hiring a professional to design and manage the site to lower cost options that the board could create and administer — with the recommendation that the board consider somewhere in between.

He said a WordPress site would probably serve the CAB's needs with development assistance by a professional before turning operation over to the board. The cost for that would be about $900 initially plus $25 per month to host the site and a $75 per hour fee for services to do updates or changes.

Whatever the CAB decides, Lytle said the CAB's domain name is set to expire on Nov. 21 — the group can either chose to retain it by paying for renewal or start fresh with a new domain name — and CAB needs to make sure it has access or links to all archived content.

Whatever the CAB decides, Lytle said the CAB's domain name is set to expire on Nov. 21 — the group can either chose to retain it by paying for renewal or start fresh with a new domain name — and CAB needs to make sure it has access or links to all archived content.

Over the years hundreds of meetings and events have been archived — mostly through the Vimeo video hosting platform — but the CAB would like to shift to YouTube moving forward so arrangements must be made to protect access to the archived content. Lytle said that would most likely involve preserving the links to the archived content and then posting a listing on the website with new content going directly to YouTube as both an access point and archive.

Another discussion focused on whether local content should be entirely web based or if the CAB should continue to utilize local cable TV access channels that have been used in the past.

Hedges said the CAB's existing computers and software no longer interface well with the cable networks and to do so would require about $9,000 worth of new equipment. With more and more households "cutting the cable" all the time, Hedges said it might make better sense to go entirely to web rather than using the cable TV channels.

Several board members noted that prior to making that decision, the CAB should seek data on how much content is being viewed on the cable channels as opposed to YouTube and social media options like Facebook. Hedges said meetings she's uploaded to Facebook generally are watched 30 to 85 times while events like the Jefferson County 4-H Fair or the Regatta Parade are watched several hundred times.

The CAB also discussed a timeline to follow through on its earlier decision to reduce board membership from a current nine-member board to three with one each to represent Jefferson County, Madison and Hanover — the three partners who fund the operation with budget allocations.

Bartlett said official action to reduce the board would require approval of the county and both cities with all three agreeing to the same amendments or proposals. Based on the timeline to complete that process, the CAB is probably looking at that being effective no sooner than January 2022.

The board agreed to meet next at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 9.

BZA OKs private recreational area in Graham Township

BY BOB DEMAREE

The Jefferson County Board of Zoning Appeals on Tuesday, unanimously approved a request to develop a private use recreational area in Graham Township to provide a campground and picnic area for the property owner's family.

The property is located at 15948 West 366 North, Deputy. Owners Terry and Linda McNeely, of Salem, sought the conditional use for recreation including camping and picnic areas for private family use only and not for the public.

"My daughter lives in Texas and my son lives in Salem," said Terry McNeely. "This is something to hold the family together when we're gone. It was a mess when we got it, and we have cleaned it up a lot."

Board member Mike Shelton commended the improvement that has been made on the property since the McNeelys purchased it. "From that mess anything done in cleaning that mess up is an improvement," Shelton said.

Josh Cline, the county's building and zoning Inspector, agreed, "If you had seen it before, it was a disaster. Now, it is super clean and a nice place."

Linda McNeely noted that when her husband first showed her the property, he told her "to imagine what it could be; he said to get a vision of it. But it was hard to imagine" because of how bad of a condition it was.

Terry McNeely said that since he and his wife took over the property, the only ones who have been there are him and his wife, and his sister and her husband but he'd like other family members to be able to enjoy the site as well.

"We're planning family functions there, and we might have 15 to 20 there, but not all of them will be staying there; some will stay in a hotel in Scottsburg."

The conditional use permit for recreation was approved with conditions that the site be for private use only and only by the McNeely's immediate family. If the property is sold outside the family or for commercial uses, a new permit would be needed and the request would have to come back before the Board of Zoning Appeals.

In the Jefferson County Plan Commission meeting held later, Lewis Handlon, 10218 West Polk Road, Lexington, in Graham Township, met with the board on the subject of cleaning up that property.

"Some tires that were piled up have disappeared, but there's still a lot that needs to be done," Cline said of the site.

Warren Auxier, president of the Plan Commission, noted the board has been dealing with cleanup of the property for three years and while the site has "not got any worse" in those three years, cleanup hasn't effectively moved forward. Auxier said he's seen some efforts to clean up the property along with "backsliding and it gets worse."

Patrick Magrath, the board's attorney, informed Handlon of the legal ramifications that could occur if he does not comply with orders to clean up the site — which include a Plan Commission vote to enforce the nuisance ordinance, possibly leading to the county having the property cleaned up with the cost passed on to Handlon.

Handlon said he was aware of the need to clean up the property and inquired about the procedures for utilizing dumpsters in the clean-up. Further action was tabled by the Plan Commission until its Nov. 2 meeting.

There was also discussion at the Board of Zoning Appeals meeting about the replacement of two BZA members who will be going off the board at the end of the year — Shelton, who was appointed by the Commissioners, and Ginny Franks, who served on the BZA as an appointment by the Plan Commission. The matter was also discussed at the Plan Commission meeting in that that board will need to seek a replacement for Franks.

Questions Regarding Probate

Layin' it on the Line

Who is in charge of the probate process?

The will names a personal representative who is responsible for overseeing the probate of an estate. A personal representative or executor may be a family member, friend, business associate, financial institution, or trust company. If the will designates no personal representative, the court appoints one.
The representative's primary duties are identifying and collecting the decedent's assets and managing those assets during the probate process. They pay debts, taxes, and probate expenses. Once probate is completed, the representative helps distribute the remaining assets to the beneficiaries named in the will.

Do I need to hire an attorney to go through probate?

For formal probate proceedings, a lawyer must represent the estate's personal representative. The representative may wish to hire an attorney for legal advice related to the probate process. The personal representative is free to hire an attorney they choose. It can be advisable for the attorney to attend administrative hearings, and the attorney's fees are paid from the estate of the decedent.

What's does formal and informal administration mean?

A probate judge presides in formal administration, and in an informal administration, the duties are handled by a county register. A formal administration is used if any contested issues arise because only a judge can rule on these disputes. Informal administration can be less costly than formal administration. Not all states offer informal and formal options for settling probate issues.

How much does probate cost? How do I control costs and expenses?

The major probate expenses include court costs and fees paid to the personal representative and the attorney. These funds come from the estate of the decedent.
The value of the estate's assets can determine the court filing fees. Attorney fees can vary based on the difficulty of the decedent's estate. Many attorneys will "specialize" in probate, and often a negotiated fee in advance can be arranged. Always make certain the fee estimates and fee structure is fully disclosed and understood before hiring an attorney. Most states do not allow an attorney to charge fees based on the overall evaluation of the decedent's estate. Also, most states allow for the representative to be reimbursed for expenses about their duties.

How long does probate take?

Depending on the state and the size or difficulty of the assets, probate can take 1-2 years. Some large estates can take longer depending on the circumstances of the assets. Time must be made available for creditors and other claims to be filed against the estate. Also, the final tax return must be filed with the IRS within nine months of the decedent's death. Some states require probate to be closed within a fixed period of time, but it can vary from state to state.

In the last two days, there have been 34 new positive cases of COVID-19 in Jefferson County, bringing the overall total during the pandemic to 4,977. Switzerland County's two-day increase in positive cases was eight, bringing its overall total to 1,318. Trimble County's two-day increase in positive cases was 13, increasing its overall total to 1,137. Carroll County's two-day increase in positive case was 17, upping its overall total to 1,779.

Jefferson County's positivity rate stands at 10.8% while Switzerland County's is 10.6%, Trimble County's is 10.68% and Carroll County's is 10.53%.

On Friday, the Associated Press reported that Indiana Gov. Eric Holcomb is waiting to decide whether to continue his court fight against a new law giving state legislators more power to intervene during public health emergencies.

Holcomb has maintained the law violates a state constitutional provision allowing only the governor to call the legislature into special session after its regular annual session wraps up by the end of April. However, on Thursday, a Marion County judge upheld the law in ruling the state constitution gives the General Assembly the authority to determine when and for how long it will meet.

Holcomb said he and his attorneys were reviewing the ruling and hadn't decided if they will appeal to a higher court.

"I'm very open minded at this," Holcomb said. "We've got time to make a very informed decision and we'll use as much time as we need."

The law was advanced forward by the Republican-dominated legislature following criticism by some legislators over the statewide mask mandate and other COVID-19 restrictions that Holcomb imposed by executive order.

Republican legislative leaders have maintained that the measure wasn't "anti-governor" and praised Holcomb's handling of the coronavirus pandemic.

"Though we have disagreed with the governor regarding this law, we have and will continue to work with him and his office in order to serve the people of Indiana," Senate President Pro Tem Rodric Bray of Martinsville said in a statement Friday.

SHELTER

Employees, volunteers and former volunteers urged the board to fill the position permanently because Slover has reportedly been difficult to work with.

The board agreed to hire an interim manager with the intent of making that position permanent by reassigning Slover when she is able to return to work. Auxier said previously board members screened all applications to come up with a group of finalists to be interviewed, interviews were conducted using an exact set of questions and candidates were scored with the results tabulated to reach a ranking prior to taking a vote. The board agreed that the process should be repeated for hiring the interim manager with the new manager then heading the selection process of other positions that may need to be filled.

Meanwhile, the shelter's remaining employees, volunteers and board members have been working to get JCAS back in order and operating as intended.

Holly Toler, the JCAS assistant manager, reported on Wednesday that shelter conditions are improving and animal adoptions are once again taking place. She said the workload has been divided among staff and volunteers and that animal care — cleaning, feeding and vaccinations — is getting done as well as business and documentation — record keeping, returning phone calls, answering emails and managing social media — along with some work to repair and paint the facility. In addition, animals are being seen by a veterinarian and medication is being administered as needed.

As of Wednesday, the shelter was housing about 15 dogs and 50 cats of which the majority were mothers with kittens. No animals have been euthanized and the facility hopes to resume its former weekend and weekday schedule for adoption contacts and possibly even expand hours to accommodate people who work days and can only visit at night.

One issue the staff has been unable to address is a way to get additional kennels for dogs as approved by the JCAS board last month. An attempt to order the kennels approved was unsuccessful and other similar kennels proved to be cost prohibitive. In addition to buying the kennels, the facility will need to construct additional concrete slabs for their placement.

County Commissioner Robert Little, who serves on the JCAS board, said he would look into the concrete issue and he agreed to tour the facility with Auxier and staff next week to assess what repairs are needed and issue exist. Meanwhile, the search for kennels will continue.

In addition to the large number of cats and kittens at the shelter, Toler noted there is a growing problem with feral cats in Madison, Hanover and Jefferson County. No ferals have been euthanized during the COVID-pandemic — such cats are a problem to adopt because they are difficult to domesticate — and the population is getting out of control which contributes to overbreeding and disease and threatens the domestic animals the shelter takes in for adoption. It was suggested that the ferals could make good barn cats but that still does not control overpopulation. It was then suggested that maybe funds could be reallocated to spay and neuter the ferals.

Auxier, who is also a Humane Society member, said spaying and neutering feral cats still does not address the issue of them roaming neighborhoods, damaging residents' property, threatening family pets and creating a nuisance. In addition, releasing ferals into such situations where no one is caring for them falls short of what is considered humane treatment. He said allowing ferals to run loose can also create situations where some residents opt to take matters into their own hands such as trying to poison ferals and that can then result in the accidental death of a neighbor's family pet which escalates the problem.

"As a Humane Society we want to release them back into a humane situation," Auxier said.

discharge, he worked at Philco in Philadelphia before successfully moving on to a career involving several important engineering projects. For 12 years, he was president of the Iron Gate chapter of the Air Force Association in New York, and he's been an active supporter of the National Air Force Museum in Dayton, Ohio.

During his time in the Air Force, Hayes said he "saw dozens of miracles one after the other" including surviving an airplane crash himself. Those experiences have strengthened his faith.

"After the airplane crash, I didn't worry about things I couldn't do anything about," said Hayes. And even in the last year, Hayes has overcome a stroke, a bleeding ulcer and COVID-19.

Hayes credits Mary Beth Boone, owner of Blush on Main, for the support she gave him during his recent health challenges. He said Boone is one of the angels in his life.

But Boone thinks much of the phenomena of Hayes' life is a "super tribute" to Frank.

"Because of the kindness he bestows on other people, he has blessings in his life," she said. "He's so good to people and kind."

Boone noted that Hayes has made positivity his mantra.

Hayes is happy to be in Madison — he'll celebrate his 90th birthday her on Oct. 28 — and notes life has been good.

"There have been so many good things about my life, I can't think of anything I would have changed," he said.

Madison rallies to beat North Harrison in semis

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

SCOTTSBURG — Madison spotted North Harrison an early 1-0 lead then dominated the rest of the match to pull out a 2-1 win in the semifinals of the Class 2A Boys Soccer Sectional Tournament at Scottsburg on Thursday.

Various weather delays during Thursday's first semifinal pushed Madison's start time back to just before 9 p.m. and the Cubs weren't exactly their sharpest as North Harrison jumped out on top 1-0 just 17 minutes into the game on a goal by Lucas Jobe.

But that score seemed to wake up the Cubs, who proceeded to take over the game and score two markers over a six-minute span including what proved to be the game-winner.

"I told (assistant) coach Adam Jones that the best thing that could happened to us would be to get down early," Madison coach Kyle Bipes joked. "North Harrison's a really good team, they got 11 or 12 seniors and they're tough. They possess the ball well. We knew it was going to be tough but I'm proud of the way we fought."

Madison (8-8-2) wasted little time getting the equalizer. Senior Henry Grote, who had three goals in the Cubs' opening round win over Scottsburg, continued his hot play when he collected a rebound off of a North Harrison player and slammed the ball into the net in the 22nd minute to tie the match 1-1.

Madison's Henry Grote (10) and Kyle Roney (22) react in celebration after Grote's goal during the Class 2A Sectional Semifinals at Scottsburg on Wednesday.

Six minutes later it was Grote setting up the score by heading the ball to Kyle Roney at the top of the box where the freshman settled the ball and fired a laser into the upper half of the net for a 2-1 lead.

"We had some very good combinations through the middle. Our first goal was fantastic," Bipes said. "I've been trying to tell Kyle all year that he needs to have some shots, and have them early and finally it came at the exact right time. That was a fantastic shot."

Roney's goal 28 minutes into the game proved to be the last for either team. North Harrison spent the rest of the game trying vainly to break through a Madison defense that allowed only five shots all night. The Cougars did launch what seemed to be the tying goal in the 74th minute, but the shot was disallowed due to an offsides call.

Bipes has touted his defense all season long and Thursday's game lived up to that respect.

"I told them at halftime that North Harrison is going to come with a lot of energy, a lot of fire and they did. And I just told them nothing stupid, clear the ball, collapse, get that ball out of there and we're going to be all right," Bipes said. "Our midfield controlled the game. There are a couple of things in the midfield, they will clean up before Saturday, but overall I thought we played extremely well."

Madison held a 13-5 advantage in shots overall including 8-3 on goal. The Cubs also had five corner kicks to three for North Harrison. Drew Forner stopped two shots in goal for Madison while Logan McIntire had six stops for North Harrison (10-4-2).

Madison will now aim for its second sectional title in the past three years when it takes on Silver Creek, a 1-0 winner over Charlestown in Thursday's first semifinal, in the sectional championship game at 2 p.m. today. Creek (9-9) posted a 1-0 win over the Cubs back in August, but Bipes is excited to see them again.

"We're super confident going in. There are going be some things that change between now and Saturday that I'm excited about, the boys are excited about, and I don't see why we can't put another trophy in the trophy case," Bipes said. "These boys believe now. They beat a very, very good North Harrison team tonight. So these boys believe in themselves, they believe in each other and if that happens, that's a very scary thought for anybody that we play moving forward."

BY THE COURIER STAFF

A late goal as the heaven's were opening proved to be the game-winner as Madison girls soccer pulled out a 2-1 win over Scottsburg in the Class 2A Sectional Semifinals Thursday on their home field.

The two teams traded goals early in the first half then settled in for a defensive struggle over the game's final 60 minutes of play. With 10 minutes to go, rain began to fall and soon after the light drizzle turned into a deluge.

But the declining weather didn't seem to bother the Cubs. After struggling to finish against the Scottsburg defense for most of the night, Madison finally broke through in the 74th minute when Carla Gaspar played a ball to Iyana Phelps on the right side of the goal. Phelps beat Scottburg goalie Madyson Richey to the ball and sent a shot into the empty net to set off the celebration.

Scottsburg (8-7) frantically tried to answer in the game's final moments, but with only five shot attempts all night, the Warriorettes were unable to get a quality look.

Madison (9-6-3) got the scoring started in the 12th minute when Taylor Lynch hit a perfect shot from 23 yards out that curved out of Richey's reach. But Scottsburg tied the game 10 minutes later when Bella Campbell was involved in a collision with Madison keeper Alaina Kelley and was awarded a penalty kick. Campbell made the shot to tie the game.

Madison held a 20-5 advantage in shots — including 7-3 on goal — but both teams had two corner kick chances. Kelley stopped two shots for the Cubs and Richey thwarted five.

Madison had reached the semifinals by defeating North Harrison 1-0 in the opening round on Wednesday.

The Cubs now advance to the sectional championship today and seek their first title since 2002. Madison will take on Silver Creek in the finals at 7 p.m. in Madison.

Switzerland slays its Oldenburg demon, wins 2-1

BY JORDAN BEAR

RISING SUN — Switzerland County girls soccer finally slayed its demon, beating Oldenburg Academy 2-1 in the Class A Sectional 45 Semifinals on Thursday at Rising Sun.

The Pacers have tried for years to find a way to take down Oldenburg and claim the top spot in the sectional. Two years ago, they fell to the Twisters in the championship. Last year, when Switzerland County was down only to nine players because of a COVID quarantine, the Pacers lost to Oldenburg in the semifinals.

On Thursday night, the 14th-ranked Pacers finally got the monkey off their back, defeating No. 13 Oldenburg and clinching a spot in the sectional championship game tonight against Milan.

"It feels good. Really good. To see how hard these girls worked and all the extra effort, it paid off in a big way," said Switzerland coach Courtney Dayadharum, whose team ended Oldenburg's four-year run as sectional champs. "There was some revenge from last year's sectional season, and it was nice to be able to finally knock them off."

It didn't take long for Switzerland to strike as Kenzie Taylor fired a shot into the corner of the net from 25 yards out just three minutes into the game to give the Pacers an early 1-0 lead.

Switzerland County's Halle Archer (5) attcks the ball as Oldenburg goalie Ellie Ryan defends during the 1A Sectional Semifinals at Rising Sun on Thursday.

"I got a great pass from my teammate and was able to put a good foot on it and get us going," Taylor said. "You have to take every opportunity you get when you play Oldenburg because you won't get a lot."

The Pacers weren't done though and doubled their lead in the 38th minute when freshman Claire Rogers found classmate Avy Burkholder, who put the ball just past the Twister keeper to give the Swiss a 2-0 lead heading into halftime.

In the second half, Switzerland County (12-1-2) spent much of the half playing defense as Oldenburg continuously attacked but the Pacers held strong and kept the Twisters scoreless until late in the contest.

Switzerland had a golden opportunity in the 60th minute to put the game away for good when Taylor got a break on goal but the ball ricocheted off the cross bar and the score stayed 2-0.

Oldenburg (8-6-2) finally broke through in the 69th minute when Sylvia Eckstein fired a shot in on a free kick to cut the lead in half.

But that was all the Pacers allowed through while closing out the victory and sending the team and their large crowd of supporters into a long awaited celebration.

Dayadharum said the quick start, plus the defensive effort, was the key to the team's success

"Kenzie got that quick goal right off the start and it pumped us up. We really reverted to a strong defensive effort and then when we got that second goal, we went to even a more defensive alignment," Dayadharum said. "My goalkeeper (Allena Weaver) certainly had a workout tonight."

Switzerland County will now take aim at its first sectional title ever when it faces off against Milan at 7 p.m. today. The two teams played to a 2-2 draw in both conference matchups this year, which resulted in then sharing the Ohio River Valley Conference title.

Dayadharum said her team will be ready.

"The last four times we've played them, we've only won one time. We're ready though," she said. "These girls have worked hard all year for this moment, now it's their time."

Cloud's kicks lift Rebels to upset win over JCD

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Peyton Cloud scored the only goal during regulation then got the game-winner in the sudden death shootout to lead Southwestern to an upset win over 10th-ranked Jac-Cen-Del in the semifinals of the Class A Boys Soccer Sectional in Osgood on Wednesday.

Cloud scored with eight minutes to go in the first half to put the Rebels ahead 1-0 but Jac-Cen-Del answered with a penalty kick in the 50th minute to tie the game.

That's where the game stood through the final 30 minutes of regulation and the 14-minute overtime session. The game then moved to penalty kicks where each team hit three attempts to push the game into sudden death.

Cloud was the first to go in the extra PK session and nailed his kick. Keeper William Stockdale, who had stopped three shots in the first round of PKs, came up big once again with a stop to secure the win.

Southwestern, now 8-9 on the season, advances to the championship game today where the Rebels take on 11th-ranked South Ripley. Game time is 2 p.m.

Switz falls to Ripley 2-1

Switzerland County's excellent boys soccer season came to an end with a 2-1 loss to 11th-ranked South Ripley in the semifinals of the Class A Sectional 45 Tournament at Jac-Cen-Del on Wednesday.

The Pacers, who came into the match ranked 20th in the state, shrugged off an early weather delay due to lightning to get a goal by Cooper Todd off an assist by Levi Curlin in the first half shortly after play resumed. South Ripley answered with a goal and the two teams were tied 1-1 at halftime.

The Raiders (14-0-4) then got a goal by Zach Gentile late in the game for the game-winner.

Goalie Aiden Furnish had 19 saves in the game and finished the season with 143 saves for the Pacers.

Switzerland County ends the season with an 11-5-1 record — a school record for wins in a season.

Rodgers, Packers rolling again, prepare for Bengals

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Bengals coach Zac Taylor has seen a lot of Aaron Rodgers.

In Taylor's estimation, he's watched more videotape on Rodgers than any other NFL quarterback. And that includes Taylor's current quarterback, Joe Burrow.

One of Taylor's first assignments when he was hired as an NFL assistant with the Dolphins in 2012 was cataloging videotape of Rodgers, who was the reigning NFL MVP.

"That was my first week in the NFL, watching every snap Green Bay took in their NFC championship run in 2011," the third-year Cincinnati coach said this week. "I was like, man, is every quarterback in the league like this? And then you come to find out over the course of 10 years that he's special."

Taylor will have a sideline seat Sunday when the Packers (3-1) visit the improved Bengals (3-1).

Rodgers at 37 is still bringing it. Last week in Green Bay's win over the Steelers, he was 20 for 36 for 248 yards and two touchdowns. He's thrown for 897 yards as Green Bay has reeled off three straight wins after losing to New Orleans in Week 1.

"It starts with their tremendous quarterback, and they've got great tools and weapons all around him, and (Packers coach Matt) LaFleur does a great job of putting them in a good position," Taylor said.

The Bengals have a pretty decent quarterback of their own.

Four days after Cincinnati took down the Steelers in Pittsburgh, the Bengals fell behind the Jacksonville Jaguars 14-0 at halftime of Thursday night's game. The unflappable Burrow led scores on all four second-half drives, the final one setting up Evan McPherson for a game-winning 35-yard field goal as time ran out.

Rodgers has noticed what's happening in Cincinnati.

"They went out and they spent some money, they brought in some free agents, guys that we know," Rodgers said. "They're a talented team. I think the difference is they're 3-1, so they're obviously playing with a lot more confidence and believing that they can

Ravens can set 100-yard rushing mark against Colts

BY NOAH TRISTER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

OWINGS MILLS, Md. — By the end of last week, it was clear that Baltimore's streak of 100-yard rushing games mattered to coach John Harbaugh.

His players are also aware of it, although some of them have downplayed it to some degree. The question now is whether the Indianapolis Colts can do anything to stop it.

"I just really will focus on our guys and execution with the plan," Colts defensive coordinator Matt Eberflus said. "I won't talk much about those other outside forces, to use those as motivation. I just think our guys are really focused on us and focused on the plan that we have going forward for this week."

The Ravens host the Colts on Monday night, and Eberflus' diplomatic comment about Baltimore's streak suggests it might not be as much of a flashpoint as it was last week. At the end of Baltimore's win over Denver, the Ravens had quarterback Lamar Jackson run for a few more yards instead of taking a knee, pushing the team's rushing total into triple digits for a 43rd consecutive game. That tied an NFL record — and left Broncos coach Vic Fangio furious.

Harbaugh made no apologies for caring about the record. Ravens offensive lineman Patrick Mekari said the players weren't that focused on reaching 100 yards — the coaches called a play, and the players' job is to execute it.

Still, the home crowd Monday will likely be quite aware of what another 100-yard rushing game would mean.

"Getting a win and doing it with breaking a record, it would be pretty dope," Jackson said. "Especially because it's a rivalry record."

The Ravens (3-1) currently share the record with the Pittsburgh Steelers, who had 43 straight 100-yard rushing games from 1974-77.

The Colts (1-3) are coming off their first win of the season. For what it's worth, they held Miami to 35 yards rushing last week, but their first three

Hunters can donate harvested deer to help feed hungry Hoosiers

BY SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Conservation officers are encouraging Indiana hunters to donate harvested deer to help feed hungry Hoosiers.

The Sportsmen's Benevolence Fund administered by the DNR Division of Law Enforcement provides grants to Hoosiers Feeding the Hungry, the Dubois County Sportsmen Club, and Hunters and Farmers Feeding the Hungry to pay for processing fees when hunters donate legally harvested deer.

Participating in the program is simple:

Enjoy a deer hunting experience.

Harvest a deer.

Drop off the field-dressed deer at a local participating processor.

Processing fees are paid for by the Sportsmen's Benevolence Fund.

The processor will create healthy venison burger to distribute to food banks.

The participating organizations notify food banks throughout Indiana when venison is ready to be collected from certified Sportsmen's Benevolence Fund butchers. The food banks distribute venison to soup kitchens and food pantries.

As a result of the 2020 deer hunting seasons, the Sportsmen's Benevolence Fund provided funding to process more than 360 harvested deer that resulted in more than 20,650 pounds of venison being donated.

For information on donating your harvested deer and participating processors, visit sbf.IN.gov.

Ex-driver killed in dispute with estranged wife

ATHENS, Ga. — Former NASCAR driver John Wes Townley was shot to death over the weekend during a dispute that involved a hatchet after showing up at a house occupied by his estranged wife and another man, police said Monday.

The 31-year-old Townley, who raced eight seasons, had the weapon at some point before he was fatally wounded by Zachary Anderson, 32, of Dunwoody, Georgia, the Athens-Clarke County Police Department said in a statement. Laura Townley, 30, was shot and wounded, it said.

John Wes Townley died after being taken to a hospital. The woman was seriously injured but is expected to survive, police said.

Investigators were trying to determine whether the Townleys remained married, but they clearly were estranged, said Lt. Shaun Barnett, a police spokesman. The relationship between Laura Townley and Anderson also wasn't clear.

No charges were filed immediately in the shooting, which happened Saturday night, and an investigation continued. Police are trying to determine whether Townley showed up at the house with the hatchet or got it there, Barnett said.

Townley made 186 starts across the NASCAR Xfinity and Truck Series, NASCAR's lower two national divisions. His victory in the Truck Series at Las Vegas six years ago Sunday was the only national series win of his career.

No. 16 UK hosts LSU looking to remain unbeaten in SEC

BY GARY B. GRAVES
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Kentucky's euphoria after its big win over Florida that earned the Wildcats a No. 16 ranking has given way to maintaining that momentum.

LSU wants to ruin the Wildcats' encore hopes as the Tigers try to regroup from a close loss.

Kentucky (5-0, 3-0 Southeastern Conference) is slightly favored in Saturday's sold-out matchup. It's new ground for the Wildcats, who say they're embracing higher expectations following last week's 20-13 upset of then-No. 10 Florida.

"It was a lot to build on, but a lot to improve on," coach Mark Stoops said. "Another big-time challenge, and we're looking forward to it."

For all the celebrations sparked by that emotional win over the Gators, Kentucky has plenty of room for improvement. The Wildcats managed just 224 yards offensively and mounted just one sustained drive over 50 yards, though it resulted in a game-tying touchdown.

On the other hand, they took advantage of game-changing opportunities created by Josh Paschal's blocked field goal and J.J. Weaver's interception, converting them into TDs. Kentucky believes its best effort is close, and players are encouraged to be unbeaten despite the growing pains.

"That says we've got a lot more coming," running back Kavosiey Smoke said.

While and Kentucky and Stoops are thriving, LSU's Cajun coach, Ed Orgeron, is under increasing scrutiny. The Tigers have gone 8-7 since winning a national title in the 2019 season.

The Tigers haven't been ranked this season since losing their opener at UCLA and missed a chance to climb back into the AP Top 25 Poll when they lost a fourth-quarter lead in last week's 24-19 home loss to No. 22 Auburn that snapped a three-game winning streak.

Orgeron has made a point this week of repeatedly presenting himself as accountable for the Tigers' recent failings.

"Ultimately, I'm responsible for the performance of this team," he said, noting that he doesn't want to give the impression he's pointing fingers at staff or players when he tries to explain various problems with LSU's play.

"I'm going to take full responsibility for everything that happens in this program, and that's just the way it's going to be."

Some other things to watch as LSU visits Kentucky:

DEFENDING BOUTTE

LSU wide receiver Kayshon Boutte enters the game leading the nation with nine touchdown receptions and a seven-game streak of TDs dating back to last season. The sophomore has caught 30 passes for 436 yards and has the attention of a Kentucky secondary that aims to limit his impact.

"One of the best we'll defend all year," Stoops said. "He makes 10-yard throws into 50-yard gains. You've got to be alert for him, but they have other guys that'll hurt you as well."

MISSING PIECES

Both teams enter the game minus key defensive players. LSU is without top cornerback Derek Stingley Jr. indefinitely after having a procedure this week on his injured left foot. He had missed the previous two games.

Kentucky lost nose guard Marquan McCall against Florida with what Stoops said was a lower extremity injury that will keep him out "for a little bit." Sophomores Josaih Hayes and Justin Hayes will share duties at the position.

RUNNING MATTERS

LSU's ground game has been largely grounded, averaging just 66.2 yards per game. The absence of top running back John Emery (academically ineligible) has hurt, while offensive line injuries have affected run blocking execution. Orgeron said LSU isn't abandoning the rush, which features junior Tyron Davis-Price and freshmen Corey Kiner and Armoni Goodwin.

"We need to make a couple adjustments on the things that we're doing," he said, "maybe some different sets, some different formations to help us be more aggressive and attack the line of scrimmage. We're not doing that well. Hopefully we can get that done this week."

ACQUIRED SKILL

Not previously known as a pass defender, Kentucky linebacker Jacquez Jones has quickly become one. His goal-line deflection sealed the victory against Florida and came three games after his acrobatic interception set up a TD against Missouri. The Ole Miss transfer earned SEC defensive player of the week honors on Monday for his nine-tackle performance.

COMMUNICATION BREAKDOWNS

Orgeron fielded numerous questions this week about apparent communication problems between first-year offensive coordinator Jake Peetz in the coaches' booth to the sideline and quarterback Max Johnson. LSU has periodically had to call timeouts to avoid delay-of-game penalties — including on the opening play of a fourth-quarter drive last weekend.

Orgeron said the problems at times have stemmed from trying to change play calls at the line of scrimmage in response to formations that defenses are showing. "We just need to settle down mostly just call the play and let it go and not try to change the play," he said.

Big Ten welcomes changes as new basketball era begins

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — When Big Ten basketball returned to Indianapolis on Thursday, it seemed like a whole new world.

Coaches openly embraced the branding power and benefits players received from the name, image and likeness rules changes.

Players talked about how the extra money has helped.

Transfer talk was no longer taboo, the men's and women's teams shared the stage — on the same day and at the same time — and everyone seemed relieved to see the first of two media days held in person.

"This is my first basketball media day," said Big Ten Commissioner Kevin Warren, now in his third year on the job. "I was a college basketball player. I love college athletics, every sport. But I adore basketball. It's good to be back in the arena here."

Rather than holding the traditional tip-off festivities near conference headquarters in suburban Chicago, league officials moved the event to Gainbridge Fieldhouse, the site of both Big Ten tournaments and the same venue where Warren announced the 2019-20 men's conference tournament had been canceled.

Players and coaches are ready to perform in front of full houses again after playing most of last season in front of nearly empty arenas. Five of the 28 men's and women's teams will have new coaches, four of whom are people of color.

The more dramatic changes might arise between two issues that could change the sport — NIL deals and roster management.

When NCAA officials opened the door for athletes to profit off their celebrity and compete immediately after transferring, coaches started rethinking how they did business.

While some, such as Illinois coach Brad Underwood, preferred taking a hands-off approach to the NIL deals, others, such as Iowa women's coach Lisa Bluder, seem fully aware of every offer coming in.

But all of the coaches agreed — this is better for the athletes.

"It's about time it's happened for our student-athletes," Michigan coach and former Fab Five star Juwan Howard said. "I just hope with the new NIL that it's not taken advantage of, people aren't taking advantage of our young men and women."

Illinois center Kofi Cockburn is a perfect example of who can benefit. The first-team, all-conference selection decided to return for his third season only after passing up the chance to leave for the NBA and turning down other offers to transfer.

The payoffs came Monday when Cockburn and more than 20 others Illinois athletes signed an endorsement deal with T/CCI Manufacturing in Decatur, Illinois, to promote manufacturing jobs. Financial details were not immediately available but every dollar helps and T/CCI is already promoting #CoolLikeKofi and designed T-shirt with the phrase.

"It's definitely a plus," Cockburn said. "I know college athletes are really appreciative of this opportunity all over the world. I know I am. It's a great thing that's going on. It's a step closer to what we can achieve."

After a breakout freshman season, Iowa guard Caitlin Clark spent this summer leading the Americans to the FIBA U19 world championship in Hungary and was named the tourney's MVP. When she returned home, Clark found she also was in high demand for NIL deals.

"There's definitely has been a lot of things rolling in, but I have a lot of people around helping," she said. "It's been cool to see a lot of different student-athletes doing a lot of different things. I haven't seen anything negative. I think it's been good. It's something that's been a long time coming for student-athletes."

Coaches, meanwhile, are learning how to deal with a different recruiting tool — the transfer portal.

More than 2,000 players entered the portal last season, a number Maryland coach Mark Turgeon believes will shrink quickly in the coming years. But Turgeon and other coaches are convinced the less-inhibiting transfer rule will alter how they build programs.

"It's certainly here to stay," Ohio State coach Chris Holtmann said. "I think you'll see less programs recruit freshmen every year. I think more teams will wait until the spring. It does probably allow you to potentially rebuild quicker than maybe the traditional way used to be for certain programs."

Now it's time to see if the altered landscape will change the projected pecking order in a vastly different season.

"We're really excited our guys get back to some normalcy," Rutgers coach Steve Pikiell said. "I do like it when we go to concerts, when they go to football games, they're able to kind of get away from basketball at times. I'd also remind them of the challenges in this league."

and should be winning games. Having a first-pick quarterback and some stud guys on that side of the ball, they've been scoring some points."

Aaron Rodgers threw his 420th career touchdown pass in the win last week to tie Dan Marino for sixth all time.

MOVING UP THE CHARTS

Rodgers threw his 420th career touchdown pass in the win last week to tie Dan Marino for sixth all time.

Rodgers has a chance to move into the top five Sunday. He's one behind Philip Rivers, who threw 421 touchdown passes before retiring at the end of last season.

FINDING MORE TARGETS

Green Bay's Davante Adams leads the NFL with 31 receptions and has more than twice as many catches as any of his teammates. Running back Aaron Jones is second on the team with 13. Randall Cobb ranks second among wideouts with nine.

But the Packers did show they're capable of spreading the ball around when the Steelers limited Adams to six catches for 64 yards and no touchdowns. Cobb had two touchdown catches in the game, marking his first game with multiple touchdown catches since 2015.

MIXON'S STATUS

Bengals running back Joe Mixon is still day to day after spraining his ankle in last week's game. But safety Jessie Bates (neck) is expected to be back for Sunday. Cornerback Chidobe Awuzie (groin), receiver Tee Higgins (shoulder) and defensive tackle Larry Ogunjobi (knee) also are back at practice and could play Sunday.

PACKERS INJURIES

Green Bay likely will be playing this game without its two top defensive players and could be missing its two best offensive linemen as well.

Cornerback Jaire Alexander is unlikely to play Sunday as the Packers continue consulting with specialists about his injured shoulder. Outside linebacker Za'Darius Smith will miss a fourth straight game with a back issue.

David Bakhtiari, an All-Pro left tackle in 2020, hasn't played yet this season and will miss at least the first six games as he recovers from a torn anterior cruciate ligament. Elgton Jenkins, a Pro Bowl left guard last season who had been filling in at left tackle, has missed the Packers' past two games with an ankle injury.

The Packers also will be missing wide receiver Marquez Valdes-Scantling for a second straight game because of a hamstring injury

Resilient Jefferson County seeking input through survey

BY BOB DEMAREE

In an effort to reduce the mental and physical challenges residents of Jefferson County face, Resilient Jefferson County is asking residents to participate in a community-wide Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs) survey through Oct 29.

"Our goal is to get as many as possible to participate in the survey," said Keith Howard, coordinator of the Healthy Communities Initiative.

The results of the survey will be used to identify which 10 ACEs are most prominent in Jefferson County and determine programs needed for youth and adults to mitigate the impact of trauma.

"This will give us a sense of the average number of ACEs in our community," said Howard. "There are questions of health so they can do a correlation if a person indicates they have heart disease, and have a certain amount of ACEs, it will help us to know the impact on health in our community."

Secondly, he said, "it will tell us which are the most prevalent ACEs so that we can find programming that addresses that."

Thirdly, he said, it is hoped the survey will "continue to raise the awareness of ACEs" and people will seek to learn more information about ACEs by visiting the Resilient Jefferson County website at https://www.resilientjeffersoncounty.org/.

Howard said the ultimate goal is "to stop the passing of ACEs from generation to generation," which is part of developing a strategy so that youth experiencing the adverse childhood experiences "have access to caring adults" who begin that process of change.

Whatever a person's ACEs score, Howard said it does not define a person, and there is the hope that a person can "break that cycle." It's a matter of helping the person past that trauma. "The mind may forget, but the body will remember," he said. "You can push out the horrible childhood trauma, but your body will still remember and act, and it's all part of the brain function. So you've had this untreated trauma, and you may take drugs to ease the pain. You're still dealing with pain you don't know is there."

Resilient Jefferson County will also continue to offer screenings of the documentary, "Resilience: The Biology of Stress and the Science of Hope."

"Once you see the movie, it really opens your eyes up, especially for those who work with children" he said. "The question will be what's wrong with you, but the question we should be asking is what happened to you. What happened in your childhood? If you are a teacher in school, and you have this child that's constantly acting out, there's a reason they are acting out. It could be because they're not getting love at home, they're being beaten at home, they're not getting enough food at home, they're moving from home to home," and various other traumatic events. And those traumatic events often lead to mental and physical issues in adulthood.

The documentary will be shown at the lecture hall at Ivy Tech Madison at 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 12, with Dr. Melissa Fry, associate professor of sociology at Indiana University Southeast, who is leading the ACEs study. More showings will be scheduled.

"Ideally, we would like everybody in the county" to see the documentary, said Howard, adding that private showings are available for any organization by contacting Howard at howardk@kdhmadison.org.

As Jefferson County moves forward with ACEs, local residents are being trained on how to deliver the ACEs interface training including Howard, Emily McDarment and Kara Sedam so locally based training can be provided to organizations in Jefferson County. "Part of our mission is to provide ACEs training and awareness in our county," he said.

The survey is open to Jefferson County residents 18 and older, and submitted responses are anonymous and confidential.

The survey can be taken online at https://www.ius.edu/arec/childhood-experiences/. There are also 10 survey pick-up and drop box locations. In Madison, that includes: the Clearinghouse of Jefferson County, 100 East Second Street; Ivy Tech Madison, 590 Ivy Tech Drive; King's Daughters' Hospital, 1373 East State Road 62; La Casa Amiga at the Eggleston Community Building, 419 East Street; Madison-Jefferson County Library, 420 West Main Street; and Salvation Army, 331 East Main Street. In Hanover, surveys are available at: Hanover-Jefferson County Public Library, 273 North Madison Avenue, and the Hanover Community Building, 200 Spruce Lane. Other locations in the county include:

STUDENT NEWS

Local grads named Green Scholars

Four 2021 high school graduates from Carroll and Trimble counties have been named Senator Jeff

by the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA).

To earn this honor, a student must achieve a 4.0 grade point average each year of high school and score at least a 28 composite on the ACT. The area students earning this honor included Dante Cruz, Kaitlyn Osborne and Lily Young of Carroll County High School and Shelby Wilcoxson of Trimble County High School.

The students have also earned Kentucky Educational Excellence Scholarship (KEES) awards, which they can use to continue their education beyond high school. They are eligible for $2,500 per year in KEES funds for up to four years of postsecondary education.

This designation is named in honor of the late State Senator Jeff Green of Mayfield, who served in the Kentucky General Assembly from 1992 to 1997.

"My administration will always put education first, and that's why we're so proud to celebrate these students for their hard work in the classroom the past four years," Gov. Andy Beshear said. "This is especially true for the 2021 graduates, who earned this honor while spending much of their last two years of high school under new and often challenging learning conditions because of the COVID-19 pandemic."

KEES and other Kentucky student aid programs are administered by KHEAA. KEES awards are funded by net Kentucky lottery proceeds and may be used at most colleges and universities in Kentucky. In some cases, the award may be used at an out-of-state school if the major the student is pursuing is unavailable in Kentucky. No application is necessary for KEES awards.

For more information about Kentucky scholarships and grants, visit kheaa.com; write KHEAA, P.O. Box 798, Frankfort, KY 40602; or call 800-928-8926, ext. 6-7214.

opponents reached 100.

Although Baltimore has managed to keep its streak going, the Ravens' backfield has been unsettled thanks to season-ending injuries to J.K. Dobbins and Gus Edwards. Jackson's passing has picked up — two of the top three regular-season games of his career in terms of yards passing have come in the past two weeks.

Carson Wentz completed 63.8% of his throws this season with five TD passes, plus one interception when Rams defensive tackle Aaron Donald rerouted tight end Jack Doyle on a shovel pass.

STEADY PROGRESSION

Indianapolis expected Carson Wentz's strong arm and ability to run to open up its offense. Now the Colts are finally starting to see some results.

Despite playing the first four games with at least one offensive line starter out — and playing the past two weeks with two sprained ankles himself — Wentz appears to be rounding into form.

He's completed 63.8% of his throws this season with five TD passes, plus one interception when Rams defensive tackle Aaron Donald rerouted tight end Jack Doyle on a shovel pass.

"I think his overall decision-making has been very good," first-year offensive coordinator Marcus Brady said. "He's taking care of the ball both in the pocket with the pass rush as well as where he's throwing the ball."

HOMESTAND

The Ravens played three of their first four games on the road, but now they don't have another road game until Nov. 11. The next four games for Baltimore are at home, with an open date included in that stretch.

ANOTHER MILESTONE

Linebacker Justin Houston, with the Ravens now after two seasons in Indianapolis, is 1 ½ sacks away from 100 in his career.

"Whatever quarterback I get it on, I'm going to ask the quarterback, 'Can I keep that jersey?' " Houston said.

UNDER THE LIGHTS

This is the third night game for the Ravens already this season — their only other home game was a Sunday night win over Kansas City.

Baltimore is 16-2 in home primetime games under Harbaugh.

THE GAMBLER

Colts coach Frank Reich uses sophisticated charts to help instruct his fourth-down decisions on game day. But he isn't afraid to play a hunch — as he did last week at Miami.

"We had a third-and-15 and threw an out route to (Michael) Pittman and ended up with fourth-and-less-than-one," he said. "We had the green light to go for it but for whatever reason, I had a gut instinct to punt. That's the one they fumbled, and we got it right back."

Indy is 3 for 7 on fourth-down conversions this season.
